

The Pandora Experiment

By J.C.Wells Aka Mobius

Throughout history mankind has questioned its own existence and meaning at times. You would not be alone..I have been questioning the meaning for many years. Is there a god? Do i exist? What is the meaning of life? What happens after death? I am what you would call a Psychic Vampire and what i mean by this is at some point in my life my chakras had broken in theory by damage sustained throughout my life. I'm talking emotional and physical trauma. This condition means however much food and nutrients i consume my subtle body (aura) leaks and i have to replace these energies by feeding upon the prana (aura) of other people as they shed their excess. I am not an evil Evil is defined by the person. I do not choose to feed...i have to..it is a necessity. A Psychic Vampire may be construed as the opposite of a reiki healer although many of my kind including me have the ability to heal pain.. in the very same way a reiki practitioner would. The only exception is that a reiki healer has not sustained any chakra damage and therefore able to practice healing without running dry of prana or as some would call it chi. However the subject of this paper is not of my origins or of my personal life but my auric condition that i have come to live with and in some ways love directly links to the experiment i am about to propose. Many people around the world have learned to astral project. During the excitatory procedure i can personally confirm vibration occurs. Let us ponder vibration for the moment. Science has proved that all matter vibrates at different frequencies in order to become stable. Solid,Liquid,and Gas all vibrate. Solid vibrates the fastest and for this reason maintains its atomic structure. The astral plain i believe is a layer of reality..that vibrates so fast it cant be seen by the naked eye..it interlaces with this reality. So next we ask how can we prove these things i am talking about? How can we prove this theory true? Surprisingly easy if you are either a reiki healer,Psychic Vampire,or any other kind of energy worker..psions would find this experiment the easiest as they are capable of manipulating energy with ease. So what can we use in order to prove this theory prove that these energies exist, prove that reality is vibrating matter and also that astral energy is real. A basic wristwatch would suffice as the movements either contain a crystal which vibrates and keeps the watch in time..For this experiment you need two or three. You could also use a L.C.D watch as a third L.C.D. Liquid crystal display if you are a Psychic Vampire as i have found electrical equipment malfunctions in the same room as me...this i believe you will agree on. Here is the method. I have tried it....it worked the watch i had lost 20 seconds over the course of a day.

1. Synchronize to the three watches of the same make and these have to both be crystal movement watches and also the batteries have to be brand new.
2. Wear the two watches on the same arm as you manipulate energy,practice reiki,or feed.
3. Record the amount of time lost,gained by cross-referencing them to the third watch you have used as a controlled condition. This watch is the one with the normal time displayed

If my theory is correct the watches will either loose or gain time while the unworn control watch stays at the normal time thus proving the existence of astral energy. I call my experiment Pandora because it may have global implications good or bad.

I wish you luck...John C Wells