SYNOPSIS – BLEEDING ROSES written and compiled by Robert Winston Burnett

Here a thriller story in the process of being refined (previously 'Zebra Zone) to incorporate more than saving precious wild life, the wilderness, nature and local inhabitants. It addresses directly daily needs of an impoverished indigenous population through respecting and sharing bio-diversity, but also so afflicted through GREED delivering INBALANCE. A joint heritage is constantly being pillaged from years of conflict to leave lands ravaged. The by now more enlightened and responsible leaders of Africa, finally decides that 'enough is enough!'

They recognize finally, all will be lost and perish unless urgent measures to revert back to basics as respect of nature, a wider wilderness and inhabitants should be confronted head on. Indeed resolve to act, by implementing defined resolutions reached at an urgently convened regional meeting held in Malawi, Southern Africa. A crack fire force is to be assembled and formed out of former sworn enemies of a previous civil war located in the then Rhodesia. Agreeing finally to join hands across divides by saving common links through joint heritages. Finally rid themselves of prejudices, while joining hands to confront a common enemy or scourge.

Yes, to confront those causing much disruption to wider environments as new partnerships are formed to also respect various Ethnic backgrounds. However, actually securing ideals proves no easy task, even at times a dream for GREED once more engulfs. Much action and fire force will unfold and enter Dove Force and complimented by local and international intelligence. Those specifically appointed experts to flush out Mr. Big, the middle men and runners involved with illegal poacher activity. The going will prove tough, uncompromising, but at least here is final recognition action is needed.

To rid themselves finally of a total bias after years of propaganda the white man in Africa is a direct threat. A common cause through joint effort will bind, yet certain influential financiers simply buy off local and international loyalties in exchange for favors, naturally. Africa has many problems confronting it. Least of all corruption and ever increasing poverty as the majority suffer at the hands of an elite minority. A third voice of the wilderness and known as Heads or Chiefs, remain lynch pins to overall success or failure of combined operations. They have to won over if ever hoping to prove a success. Then of course, there's the dreaded witch doctor influences to also consider.

Most prove friendly enough, but scattered in the midst are those more than willing to employ negative influences when required. In all truth, Dove Force, along with authority will be up against it. Even at periods giving serious consideration to calling operations off, altogether. However, combined will's to finally lift lands out of despair, assists to keep hearts, minds and souls concentrated on final intended goals by securing all through balanced harmony.

Just then, Mother Nature decides to remind, even intervene and in unexpected measure! Severe storms will lash neighbouring Mozambique and surrounding territories, with Humans further challenged and tested to form lasting joint working partnerships, but for good. Will they rise to the challenge or simply once more - neglect each other through outside influences?
